

Bejo is an internationally operating Dutch family company specialised in breeding, production and sales of vegetable seeds. The quality of our product is our top priority. Together with our highly motivated and committed staff, we want to boost our innovative company's growth worldwide.

The colleagues of the Breeding department are responsible for the development and innovation of ambitious breeding programs for field and fruit crops worldwide. This is done in close collaboration with the colleagues from the Research department.

INTERNSHIP

The effect of watering and nutrients on the quality of Broccoli heads

(June – December 2024)

THE INTERNSHIP ASSIGNMENT

In many fields Broccoli has problems concerning head quality. That can be physiological problems but also problems with fungal or bacterial diseases. Besides looking for resistances against those antagonists and culture measurements, it looks like that the state of the field and the condition of the plants also have an effect on the vulnerability or susceptibility for these disorders. Is there a side-effect of excessive nutrient supply and/or constant watering on the quality of the product?

YOUR POWER

- An agricultural education at HBO level
- Interest in breeding and practical research
- The ability to work independently and proactively
- Communication skills in Dutch and English
- In possession of driving license B (in connection with travel between the different locations)

OUR OFFER

During this internship, you will have the opportunity from day one to develop independently and in a team. Our informal company culture offers plenty of potential for personal initiative. In addition to growth in personal development, you will of course receive good coaching on your internship assignment. You will receive an internship allowance and shortly after the start of your internship you will be invited for an introduction day where you will get to know the entire company process.
